A GRAVE MENACE IMPENDING

IN the United States the men perform the more arduous tasks, such as those in the fields, mines and mills, although women have in latter years entered many occupations wherein the hand and brain are utilized, and they are proving themselves efficient. In Europe, however, women and children are performing the severest sort of toilsome labor, taking the places of the soldiers who by the millions are battling at the front.

When the latter return they will find their positions so adequately filled that they must turn elsewhere for occupation. And inasmuch as only a portion of them will be engaged in the work of rehabilitation, the others must find employment in positions that will bring small return. While compensation in the United States is being advanced, it will actually be reduced in Europe, owing to the intense competition caused by women and children becoming competitors in all lines of industry.

The effect will be that manufacturing costs will be reduced and the industries of the United States will suffer from keener competition than ever before in their history. There is but one means of relief in sight, and that is the rearing of a tariff wall that will be almost a complete barrier to importations. Thus the producer will be protected and the consumer will receive adequate compensation. Otherwise there would be complete osmosis and all nations would be brought to one level and the people of the United States would pay, owing to lessened compensation, their portion of the staggering war debt. The only safeguard can come through election to the presidency and to both houses of congress men whose party is pledged to protection to American industries and to American labor.

WHY CALL ON ARGENTINE?

THE importation of four thousand tons of wheat from the Argentine Confederation is stated in the press dispatches of yesterday as marking an epoch for the United States. That does not mean that this is the first time this country has gone to its neighbors for material for bread. Canada, particularly Manitoba, has found us liberal customers for a number of years. But that is not the question. What is of greater moment is the fact that we should be compelled at any time to go out of our territory for grain, or, for that matter, anything else that can be produced at home.

There is an old saying that it is not what a man makes, but what he saves that determines his financial status. We have made worlds of money at the expense of the countries at war and are now the richest people that ever tenanted the globe. Now that this money has been gained let it be conserved against old age, for time creeps upon nations as well as individuals, and former wealthy empires are now groveling at the feet of their creditors and grinding their people under taxation.

The money the United States has made can be kept at home by producing enough of everything needed to supply local consumption and a little more for export. With so many millions of acres of cultivable land there should be no lack of foodstuffs, with the consequent increase in price, such as flour is registering at present. True, it may have been a dry season, but there should have been sufficient acreage under cultivation to provide against lack. There are in Nevada large estates that are producing only alfalfa, simply because that crop is the easiest to produce, when forty to fifty bushels of wheat, bringing in many times the selling price of hay, could be raised instead. The result is that Nevada is usually overstocked with hay and even at times is compelled to send to other states for grain for its flouring mills.

The point to be made is that the most needful products and those that bring the best price should be cultivated, even though the attending expense is greater. It is much more remunerative in the end.

AVERT THIS GRAVE MENACE

THERE is an old saying relative to whose ox is gored. It has an evidence in the Toronto World, a copy of which has reached the exchange desk of the Bonanza. That paper is published in a colony of Great Britain, one that has given its lives and treasure to the world war. It is loyal to the government that has taken toll of its so pitilessly, but at the same time it points out a coming condition that should be the subject of careful thought on the part of Americans before they cast their votes at the coming election.

This paper quotes the manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, who says that by the end of the year Great Britain will cease the importation of war munitions from the United States. This, he believes, will correct the adverse balance of trade against Britain and much improve her financial condition. Phenomenal progress has been made by the British manufacturers and the British government. The time will come when her war munitions will all be made by Britain, even to the exclusion of the dominions.

There is grave import in the foregoing statement. It means that the sudden prosperity of the United States will come to an end and the balance of trade will turn against this nation unless the people protect themselves by rearing a tariff wall. So skilled are the British men and women becoming in manufactures that at the conclusion of the war they will convert the great munitions factories into establishments that will create not merely the material for rehabilitation but will produce articles now imported from the United States and in such quantities and at such a price that American industries will be paralyzed by competition.

There is grave danger ahead for America when the swords are turned into plowing hooks abroad. The scale of wages here will fall to that of Europe unless this country takes immediate steps for the protection of its industries. Capital and labor must go hand in hand and the party that is pledged to protection and has always worked to that end must be returned to power at the election in November and thus the menace will be averted.

NORTHERN CAMPS LOOKING WELL

J. Wesley Stewart, Harry H. Atkinson and Tom Lindsay, who returned last night from a campaigning trip to Manhattan and Round Mountain, report that the latter camp had a very successful season. The cleanup of bedrock is continuing with excellent results. Although hydraulic mining has ceased for the season, sluicing is still in progress. Both the quartz mine and mill of the Round Mountain Mining company are in operation. The outlook for next year is excellent, as the storage capacity for placer operations will be augmented.

Manhattan, they say, is particularly optimistic at present, owing to the developments in the mines. The White Caps mill will start February 1, or thereabouts. The Morning Glory is exposing ore that is really jewelry. The Union Amalgamated plans to sink 125 feet deeper, having encountered high grade on the 500 level. The Big Pine and Big Four are to be glorified extensively. Mustang is proving up splendidly, due to the leasing operations of Train & Chase. The Salsberry properties, under the management of Mr. Griffith, are producing. The Putney mill is nearing completion. Other operations are being carried forward, but the gentlemen, who were on a political rather than mining publicity errand, did not have time to make full inquiries.

INCREASING TRAVEL OVER THE MIDLAND

Automobile travel over the Midland route this season, according to local garage men, started out rather auspiciously this season, news of the washing out of the Hot Creek bridge having been generously advertised by champions of the Lincoln and other transcontinental highways. Thus a large amount of traffic was diverted to Tonopah's loss. As a matter of fact the detour required but a few miles and over a good road.

Later in the summer the traffic increased and by July it was equal to that of last year when the two expositions were drawing cards extraordinary. It is continuing to increase and will do so until the winter storms set in. At present the greater amount of travel is westward, eastern people being on their way to southern California for the season. It is expected that next summer, owing to the opening of the Tioga pass road, the traffic will be heavier over the Midland than over the Lincoln highway from Ely westward.
